Probationary Periods and Reviews - Using them Correctly and Getting the Best out of your Review Process

Jennifer D. Wiegele, Partner, Mathews, Dinsdale & Clark LLP

There are many misconceptions surrounding the laws about probationary periods and probationary reviews.

In this session, we will cover the following:

- legal requirements for an enforceable probationary clause in an employment contract;
- the importance and significance of using probationary periods;
- legal requirements for conducting probationary reviews;
- different types of reviews – pros/cons;
- tools for conducting effective probationary reviews; and
- tools for Chief and Council to evaluate its Band Administrator/ED/CAO.

We hope all participants will leave with a clear understanding of how to effectively use probationary periods and with tools to conduct evaluations on all employees, including Band Managers.

Embracing Conflict from a Trauma Informed Perspective

- Are you feeling like you're spending the majority of your time managing people issues? Are you ever wanting to avoid the conflict because it's in the "too hard" pile? Wondering why a certain employee always seems to "push back" on everything? You are not alone!
- Conflict in the workplace is inevitable because when people come together there is always going to be conflict. The question becomes, how do we manage conflict in a safe, effective and respectful way? The answer is yes not only is it possible we can do this while incorporating culture, tradition and employment standards!
- This workshop will take you on a journey towards understanding the power of trauma informed practice within a workplace context. You will learn how to identify and better manage high conflict situations while building even stronger positive relationships with your workmates. Participants will develop their knowledge on resolving conflicts the right way along with the basic principles of collaborative mediation and how to access external neutral resources to coach, mentor and resolve some of those really messy workplace 'people' challenges
