Fallout from the COVID-19 pandemic and the rampant public health crisis that soon followed serve as a fresh reminder of the importance of effective communication across all levels of the public sector when it comes to response efforts for emergencies and disasters. It is imperative for public sector organizations to be on top of emerging emergency communications best practices in order to ensure that citizens and businesses are effectively informed and updated along every step of the way.

Benefits of Attending:

- Gain practical guidance to improve your emergency & crisis communications strategy
- Best Practices in emergency communications
- Select and use communication channels during a public health emergency
- Ensure voice and data networks and applications are resilient, secure, and accessible
