Indigenous communities across Canada are constantly facing emergencies and natural disasters caused by weather-related events such as floods, tornadoes and landslides that are becoming more frequent and severe. The ongoing COVID-19 pandemic that has altered virtually every aspect of day-to-day life has further complicated emergency management within Indigenous communities. As a leader in your Indigenous community, it is imperative for you to take proactive measures in order to ensure the health and safety of your community when emergencies inevitably occur.

Benefits of Attending

- Navigating the COVID19 Pandemic in Indigenous Communities: Lessons Learned
- New Approaches to Address Business Continuity Planning: Key considerations for Indigenous communities
- Leveraging Technology for Critical Communication on Reserves: Implementing a framework for innovation and technology
- Implementing an Indigenous Disaster Resilience Program: Guidance, tools and resources to help build an effective resilience program
